Brown Rudnick Partner Edward J. Naughton Elected to Greater Boston Legal Services' Board of Directors

Boston, MA, July 18, 2008 -- Brown Rudnick, a premier international law firm, today announced that Edward J. Naughton, a partner in the Firm's Litigation Department, has been appointed to the Greater Boston Legal Services' (GBLS) Board of Directors. GBLS provides free legal assistance and representation to thousands of low-income individuals and families in Boston and surrounding communities.

When asked about being named to the GBLS Board, Mr. Naughton commented, "I am honored to be part of an organization with such a strong history of supporting the disenfranchised in our local communities. As a Board member, I will work to advance the GBLS' mission to provide high-quality legal counsel to a those in need, such as victims of domestic violence, homeless families, people denied health care or unemployment benefits, elders living in poverty, people with disabilities, and so many others."

Mr. Naughton is an experienced trial attorney specializing in patent litigation and intellectual property law. He has particular experience in counterfeiting and piracy matters and has litigated dozens of patent, trademark, copyright, trade secret, and licensing cases in state and federal courts and before arbitration panels.

Formed in 1976, GBLS is New England's largest legal services organization. With a staff of close to 100 attorneys and paralegals, the organization specializes in nine different sectors that include Asian Outreach, Elderly, Employment, Family Law, Health & Disability, Medicare Advocacy, Housing, Immigration, and Welfare.
